A GAZETTEER OF DELAWARE.

By HENRY GANNETT.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF THE STATE.

Delaware is one of the Middle States, and borders upon Delaware Bay and the Atlantic Ocean between latitudes $38^{\circ} 30'$ and $39^{\circ} 45'$, and between longitudes $75^{\circ} 00'$ and $75^{\circ} 50'$. The east boundary of the State is Delaware Bay and the Atlantic Ocean. The south boundary is a line beginning at Cape Henlopen—as the name was originally applied—in latitude $38^{\circ} 27'$, and running due west 34 miles 309 perches. The west boundary is a straight line, commencing at the westernmost point on the southern boundary and running northward 81 miles 78 chains and 30 links until it touches and makes a tangent to the western periphery of a circle with a radius of 12 statute miles from the center of the town of Newcastle. The north boundary is the periphery of this circle as far as Delaware River.

Delaware was first settled by the Dutch in 1629. In 1638 the Swedes made a settlement and held the colony until 1655, when it was surrendered to the Dutch. In 1664 this region, with the other Dutch possessions, was acquired by the Duke of York. In 1682 this territory passed from the Duke of York to William Penn by deed, and was held by him until 1701, when he granted it a charter enabling its people to set up a separate government. Delaware is one of the thirteen original States, and was the first to adopt the Constitution, taking this step December 7, 1787.

The population of the State in 1900 was 184,735. The following table gives the population at each census since 1790:

Population of Delaware at each census since 1790.

1790.....	59,006

The density of population in 1900 was 94.3 inhabitants to a square mile. The chief city is Wilmington, with a population of 76,508 in 1900; the capital is Dover, with a population of 8,329 in 1900. The urban population in 1900 amounted to about 54 per cent. As to sexes, the population is divided in the proportion of 51 males to 49 females. The State contains 30,697 negroes, five-sixths of the population being white, while one-sixth is colored. The proportion of foreign born is small, only 7.5 per cent of the inhabitants being foreign born, to 92.5 per cent native born.

Of the total population 10 years of age and over, 12 per cent were unable to read and write. This illiteracy was, however, found mainly among negroes. The illiterate element of the whites consisted of only 7 per cent of the whole number, while that of the negroes constituted 38 per cent. Of the total population over 15 years of age, 36 per cent were single, 55 per cent married, 8 per cent widowed, and 0.2 per cent divorced.

Of the entire number of inhabitants over 10 years of age, almost exactly one-half were engaged in gainful occupations. Of the males not less than 81 per cent were wage-earners, and of the females 18 per cent. The wage-earners were distributed in the following proportions among the five grand divisions of occupations:

In 1900 there were 9,687 farms in the State, of which more than nine-tenths were operated by white farmers. Of the entire number of farms, just one-half were operated by their owners and the other half by tenants. The area of land in farms was 1,066,228 acres, of which 754,010 acres were improved. The average size of the farms was 110 acres, which is considerably less than the average of the country. The improved area amounted to 71 per cent of the total farm area and 60 per cent of the total area of the State. The value of all the farm property was $40,697,654, of which $34,436,040 consisted of land and buildings, $2,150,560 of farm implements and machinery, and $4,111,054 of live stock. The farm products were valued at $9,290,777. The average value per farm of all farm property was $4,201, and the value of products per farm was $959. The following table gives the number of animals upon farms:

Meat cattle	54,180
Horses	29,722

SIR: I have the honor to transmit herewith, for publication as a bulletin, a gazetteer of Maryland.

Very respectfully,

Geographer.

HON. CHARLES D. WALCOTT,
Director United States Geological Survey.

A GAZETTEER OF MARYLAND.

By HENRY GANNETT.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF THE STATE.

Maryland is one of the Eastern States, bordering on the Atlantic Ocean, about midway between the northern and southern boundaries of the country. It lies between latitudes 37° 53' and 39° 44', and between longitudes 75° 04' and 79° 33'. Its neighbors are Pennsylvania on the north, West Virginia and Virginia on the west and south, and Delaware on the east. Its north boundary is Mason and Dixon's line, and its east boundary is, in part, a nearly north-south line separating it from Delaware and Pennsylvania, and, in part, the Atlantic Ocean. On the south the boundary is an irregular line across the peninsula separating Chesapeake Bay from the Atlantic Ocean; then across Chesapeake Bay to the southern point of the entrance to Potomac River; thence following the low-water line on the south bank of the Potomac to the head of the north branch of that river, at a point known as Fairfax Stone, excepting the area of the District of Columbia. The west boundary is a meridian drawn through Fairfax Stone northward to Mason and Dixon's line.

The gross area of the State, including that part of Chesapeake Bay in its borders, the broad estuaries at the mouths of the rivers, and the lagoons on the Atlantic coast, is 12,210 square miles, of which 9,860 square miles are land area.

The topography of the State is extremely varied, ranging from level lands, but slightly elevated above the sea, to mountains and plateaus in the western part of the State, 3,000 feet in altitude. The peninsula east of Chesapeake Bay and a narrow strip west of that body of water constitute what is known as the Coastal Plain. This has an area of 5,000 square miles, or more than one-half of the land area of the State. The peninsula is very low and level, nowhere rising 100 feet above tide, and much of it, especially near the shore of the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay, is marshy. The Atlantic coast is bordered by sand bars, including broad lagoons of shallow water on their landward side. On the west side of Chesapeake Bay the Coastal Plain reaches an altitude of 300 feet in places, and shows much relief. Of the twenty-three counties of the State, the following are comprised in the Coastal Plain: Worcester, Somerset, Wicomico, Dorchester, Caroline, Talbot, Queen Anne, Kent, and Cecil, on the peninsula, and Prince George, Charles, Calvert, St. Mary, and Anne Arundel west of Chesapeake Bay.

Along a line running through Havre de Grace, Baltimore, and Washington the granitic rocks rise to the surface. This is called the "fall line," from the fact that streams have rapids or falls where they flow across the first hard ledges. West of this line granite or allied rocks predominate, while east of it, on the Coastal Plain, are soft Cretaceous and Tertiary formations. This region extends from the fall line to the Blue Ridge and has an area of about 2,500 square miles. It is known as the Piedmont Plateau and comprises the following counties: Montgomery, Howard, Baltimore, Harford, Carroll, and Frederick. This region presents much more relief and is higher than the Coastal Plain.

The third zone, that of the Appalachian Mountains, extends from the Blue Ridge to the west boundary of the State, and has an area of about 2,000 square miles. It includes the counties of Washington, Allegany, and Garrett. In the main this region consists of an alteration of valleys and mountain ridges, the latter rising to altitudes of 2,000 and 3,000 feet. In the western part, mainly in Garrett County, is a plateau with a rolling surface 2,500 feet above sea level.

The mean elevation of the State is estimated at 350 feet. The areas in different zones of altitude are as follows:

Maryland was first settled in 1634 under a charter to Lord Baltimore, settlement being made at St. Marys. It was one of the thirteen original States, having adopted the Constitution on April 28, 1788. In 1791 the State ceded to the General Government for the purposes of a capital an area of about 70 square miles, which constitutes the present District of Columbia. The following table shows the growth of population in the State from the first census in 1790 to the latest in 1900:

In 1790 Maryland was the sixth State in the Union in population. In 1900, although its inhabitants were 3.7 times as numerous, it had dropped to the twenty-sixth in rank, owing to the rapid growth of the newer States in the Mississippi Valley. In 1900 the average density of population was 120 persons to the square mile. It has five cities which exceed 6,000 inhabitants, of which Baltimore has over half a million. The other four are as follows: Cumberland, 171,287; Hagerstown, 13,591; Frederick, 9,296; and Annapolis, the capital, 8,525. These five cities contain 45.9 per cent of the population of the entire State. In cities of more than 2,500 inhabitants live 48.8 per cent, or nearly one-half the population of the State, while the remainder, 51.2 per cent, may be regarded as rural. In 1900 the population was divided almost equally between the two sexes, 49.6 per cent being males and 50.4 per cent being females. The negro population, though large for a border State, is diminishing in proportion to the whites. In 1900 the whites formed 80.2 per cent and the negroes 19.8 per cent, or nearly one-fifth of the population. The number of foreign-born inhabitants was also small, the persons of native birth forming 92.1 per cent, while those born in foreign countries were 7.9 per cent. Immigration from other States has not been large, since it is found that 94.1 per cent of the native population 13 per cent were born in other States.

For a State containing so large a proportion of negroes, the illiteracy is slight. In 1900, persons of 10 years of age and upward who were unable to read and write constituted 11.1 per cent of the population. The illiterates comprised only 4.1 per cent of the native whites over 10 years old, 13.4 per cent of the foreign born, and 35.1 per cent of the negroes.

Of the population, 15 years old and upward, 37.9 per cent were single; 52.9 per cent married; 8.5 per cent widowed; 0.2 per cent divorced; and the conjugal condition of the remainder was unknown. The average size of a family was 4.9 persons, being somewhat larger than the average for the country.

Of persons 10 years old and upward, practically one-half, or exactly 49.8 per cent, were engaged in gainful occupations. Of males, 79.0 per cent were wage-earners; of females, 21.0 per cent. The following table shows the proportion of the wage-earners employed in each of the five general classes of occupations:

Division of wage-earners according to occupations.

	Per cent.
Agriculture	20.8
Professions	4.2
Domestic and personal service	26.1
Trade and transportation	19.9
Manufacturing and mining	29.0

Agriculture is one of the leading occupations. In 1900 the State contained 46,021 farms, of which seven-eighths were occupied by white farmers and one-eighth by negro farmers. Two-thirds of the farms were owned by their occupants, and one-third were rented, either for money rental or on shares of the products. The farms had a total area of 5,170,075 acres. The cultivated area amounted to 3,516,352 acres, or more than two-thirds of the farm area and 55.7 per cent of the total area of the State. The average size of the farms was 112.4 acres, being considerably less than the average for the United States. The total value of all the farms was $204,645,407, which was made up of the following items:

Value of farm lands, buildings, and accessories.

Land	$120,367,550
Buildings	54,810,760
Implement and machinery	8,611,220
Livestock	20,855,877
Average value per farm	4,348
Average value of products per farm	952

The product amounted to 21.0 per cent of the value of the farms, and may be regarded as the farming profit. The following table shows the amount of live stock in the State:

Live stock in Maryland in 1900.

Cattle	306,710
Horses	188,726
Mules	19,734

The following table shows the leading farm products:

Tobacco	24,589,480 pounds

In the production of tobacco, Maryland is the eighth State in the Union.

Manufactures are of great importance, Maryland being the fourteenth State in the Union, while in agriculture it is only the twenty-ninth. The following table summarizes its manufactures, of which two-thirds are carried on in the city of Baltimore:

Statistics of manufactures of Maryland for 1900.

Establishments	9,879
Employees	108,325
Horsepower	141,879

The railway mileage in the State in 1902 was 1,383 miles, most of which was in the Baltimore and Ohio and the Pennsylvania systems. There is one canal, the Chesapeake and Ohio, which follows Potomac River from Cumberland to Washington, D. C., and is principally used for the transportation of coal from the Cumberland district.

The principal and almost sole mineral product of the State is coal, which is mined in large quantities in the neighborhood of Cumberland. It is a bituminous coal of excellent quality. In 1901 the amount mined was 5,113,127 tons.
